

WHEN WE ALL GO BOLSHEVIKI

MADE GOOD WHEN HE SAW SERVICE IN FRANCE

There are a number of Ogdens who will be interested to know that a man who was held in the county jail last summer and was released in order that he might enlist in the army and fight for the Stars and Stripes has made good in the service and has won the respect of his comrades in arms and of his officers as well.

The man in question is Max Shear, now with the Headquarters company of the 137th Infantry, a unit which fought on all the fronts in France and took part in a number of the heaviest engagements of the great war. While Shear was held in the county jail, having been brought back to Ogdens from Los Angeles on a charge of having overdrawn funds in a bank, he was given considerable publicity, especially on account of a young woman from a city in Ohio who refused to turn against him. He had been able to make considerable money before coming to Ogdens, according to the investigation conducted by officers, and was considered a very intelligent young man.

On account of his name and his German ancestry Shear was for a time suspected of disloyalty to the United States, which he at all times most emphatically denied and stated that if given a chance he would prove his loyalty. Finally it was decided that, as his eastern friends had shown their faith in him by making good his cash shortages, which he claimed he had no intention of allowing to become permanent defaults, the local officers would give him a chance to enlist. Accordingly he was given immediate induction in the service and was soon in Camp Lewis. It was not long until he was on his way overseas and finally entered battle against the people from whence came his ancestors.

During his stay he became acquainted with a number of Ogdens boys, among them Tom Matthews, now of Salt Lake City. Tom Matthews, who was recently discharged from the service, is a brother to Frank Matthews, the commercial artist of Ogdens. The following letter was written by Shear to Tom Matthews who was so interested in letting people know the quality of the man that he gave the letter to his brother, who in turn permitted the Standard representative to take it for publication, other facts also being provided.

"My Dear Friend Tom:

"Your letter of January 13 was received yesterday, and I can assure you I was 'beaming' glad. I had been waiting for such a long time that I thought perhaps you had forgotten me, but I'll lay it on 'em. How long I will remain here is a matter of doubt. Rumor has it we shall 'port' within the month, but rumors have proven themselves false so often that I place absolutely no faith in them. My old unit, the 1st, is back home, but I am not sorry. I am not included, as they were in the S. O. S. and we saw action at every front. Pretty tough on Lee to remain in the service, but it won't hurt him.

"I am going down to — in the morning to see the football game between the Thirty-second and the Second divisions for the championship of the army of occupation, and I am backing our boys with Deane's 'Jack'." "Please give my best to your wife and child and pass it along to Lester.

"Yours,

P. S. There are few boys in my unit that were in Camp Lewis with me.

SEN. HITCHCOCK FOR PROMPT WORK

Believes There Will Be No Need of Extended Debate on Treaty.

EUROPE IN DISTRESS

Earliest Possible Ratification of Agreements Needed to Stabilize Nations.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, chairman of the foreign relations committee in the last senate, speaking tonight before the Washington commercial club, expressed the belief that the proposed covenant of the league of nations would be amended "as public opinion has demanded" and together with the peace treaty would be ratified without change when submitted to the senate. The Nebraska senator urged the necessity of a prompt peace settlement in order to stop the spread of lawlessness in Europe.

"This treaty, when it comes to the senate," Senator Hitchcock said, "will have the benefit of criticism not only in the U. S. but in other countries and will probably include such amendments as public opinion has demanded. When the peace settlement comes over here for the ratification of the senate it will probably be too late for the senate to attempt amendments. Any amendment adopted by the senate would have to go back for acceptance by the other thirteen nations and that would delay the peace settlement for a long time. Delays are said to be dangerous and in this case they are dangerous in the highest degree because at the present time the very life of civilization in Europe is at stake. If a peace settlement is not produced at an early date the spread of lawlessness and disorder may involve still more of Europe."

Disclaiming any special information as to the inner workings of the peace conference, Senator Hitchcock said that among the changes he assumed would be made would be the insertion of amendments giving a nation the right to withdraw from the league and specifically reserving the right of individual nations to control their own domestic affairs including immigration. He said he also believed that provisions would be inserted making it clear that no decision of the executive council nor of the league would be binding on any nation except by unanimous vote and that the recommendations by the executive council for the renunciation of armaments be not effective until each nation through its constituted authorities had approved them.

Senator Hitchcock said that one of the curious features of the opposition to the proposed covenant was the "variety and inconsistency" of that opposition. He added that there were "not many who are opposed on principle to the idea of a league of nations."

All of this opposition," he said, "testifies that the league is international and represents a compromise between nations all bent on the same idea of preventing war."

Smothering a Fire By Tanks of Carbonic Acid Gas

JACKSON, Cal., April 1.—Two tank cars loaded with carbonic acid gas, which is used in making soda water, arrived today and six more are on the way here to be used in smothering a fire in the 4000 foot level of the Argonaut mine, discovered late last Thursday. Puffs from the fire have penetrated the workings of the Kennedy mine, a neighboring shaft, and hoisting of ore there has been suspended. Both are cold mines. Bulkheads have been built in the main and air shafts of the Argonaut to aid in smothering the fire and are being built in the Kennedy to keep out the gas.

Reports from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Ohio were too meagre to reveal conditions. Chicago showed an equality of labor while several other Illinois cities reported a surplus, a condition that prevailed also in Indiana.

Southern states reported the best conditions, several places reporting a shortage, principally of farm labor. Pacific coast figures were not received except from Portland, Oregon, which showed a surplus of 2,350.
